2. How do classes work? Do you have laboratory work and lectures? How many hours are for lectures and laboratory work and are both obligatory?

It depends on the class students take. For a class that is worth 5ECTS students have to work around two 1.5h long lectures a week.

The lecture courses and practical courses(lab courses) are separate courses, therefore students also have to register for them separately.

Lectures are twice a week and it takes 75mins in each time. For practical courses, there is 3~4hours per week at a time and there is usually a term project.

KNU course registration is available for three days in early February (for Spring Semester) and early August (for Fall Semester). International students must register for courses on their own. During the Add & Drop period in early March (for Spring semester) and early September (for Fall semester), students will only be able to add or drop registered courses. Courses must have compatible schedules. KNU cannot guarantee enrolment in any course. Enrolment is often subject to change due to class size limitations.
